The story, reconstructed yesterday by family, friends and officials, is this: Young "Mac," as he was called on the campus, who was the son of Dr. and Mrs. William Thomas Harsha of 5121 Kimbark avenue, and the grandson of Dr. William McIntire, 4440 Drexel houlevard, left his home at half past five Thursday evening to take to the bus a girl who had been visiting his

At the Kimbark avenue home the news came as a shock to "Mac's" brothers and sisters. His next younger brother, William Thomas, 18, also a freshman at the university and a Phi dunes region, north of Chester and Kappa Sigma pledge, was stunned west on the Fulton road, where, about when he heard what had happened. new, and only one was used. His billfold was empty, save for a newspaper clipping of an article about student discontent.

More clews came from a label of a Chicago tailor and a phone message was sent. Dr. and Mrs. Harsha hurried to the morgue of F. S. Gross.

The doctor pushed his hands across his head and muttered: "Well, there he is."

Shocks, Puzzles Father.

Later, when he had regained his composure, he addressed himself to nobody in particular, as he said, "What are you going to do nowadays? You bring up your children the best you know how. You do everything for them. When they get to be 19 they get a gun and do this. I don't understand."

A few minutes later he told the officials at Chesterton that his son had committed suicide over a leve affair.

Strong and Athletic.

Young Harsha was not the melancholy type, they said. Had no financial worries, no love affairs, as far as they knew. The Harsha home was noted in the neighborhood for its hospitality. "Mac" had been graduated in 1925 from the University High school, where he had played football and basketball and achieved considerable reputation as an amateur wrestler. The following fall he enrolled at the university, but left later and went to work for his uncle, Edward H. Harsha, owner of a battery works. In charging batteries on a bus he was hurt in the mouth, several teeth were knocked out, and he gave up the job.

Last fall he again entered the university, this time with his brother, Tom. Both were pledged to Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. Again, in a few weeks this time, "Mac" left school. And, for the third time, he returned to the Midway campus at the beginning of the winter term.

Thompson Says He'll Punish Police for Black Belt Raids

William Hale Thompson, opening his platform campaign for mayor last night at a meeting of Negro voters on the south side, tore into Mayor Dever and the police for the raids and arrests in the Second, Third and Fourth wards. Thompson called Dever a "Cossack mayor," and termed him "the biggest liar and the biggest crook who ever broke an oath of office."

The meeting was held in Masonic Temple hall, Fifty-first street and Michigan avenue. It was a dinner and smoker for barbers and janitors, and the hall was packed with an audience

Two charges of dynamite had been planted in the Bethel road about 100 yards from the main highway. As the cars passed over them the two bombs, about thirty feet apart, were set off with an electric battery by the bandits, hidden near by. Both cars were blown into the air, overturning as they fell, shattered wrecks, near holes several feet deep in the ground where the dynamite had been placed. How the bombs had been set off was learned tonight when investigators discovered wires leading from the two craters in the road to a rotted tree in a field more than 100 yards away.

ANGRY, SPREADING RASH ON BABY'S BOD'

Los Angeles, Cal., July 28:—
"When my baby was four months old, little red pimples which resembled heat or teething rash appeared on her body. I used various baby powders, but the trouble kept spreading until nearly all the lower part of her body was covered. Then it began to look white and scaly and I knew it was more than an ordinary rash. I decided to try Resinol Ointment, and after the first two or three applications I noticed an improvement. I kept on using this ointment, however, and bought some Resinol Soap to bathe her with. The 'result was that the trouble completely disappeared. I have always used Resinol Soap for her bath since. She is two years old now, and her skin is absolutely free from any blemish. When my boy began to have ringworms, I was so persistent in the use of Resinol Ointment that they were soon cleared away. I wouldn't be without Resinol in the house, and at the least sign of any eruption on the children, I use it." (Signed) Mrs. L. E. Crenshaw, 7806 Lou Dillon Ave.

"tell me a good novel to read" How many times do you ask this question in a year?

And whom do you ask? Why don't you ask the First Edition Society Jury?

Their unbiased and composite recommendation for the month of March is "Elmer Gantry" by Sinclair Lewis. "Elmer Gantry" was published on March 10th. Promptly on the tenth a first edition copy of "Elmer Gantry" was sent to every preferred member of the First Edition Society. Elmer Gantry by the author of Main Street, Babbitt and Arrowsmith is a "perfect though merciless delineation of a Charlatan of the Cloth. In the wake of Elmer Gantry' trail all the tricksters and quacks who, from the dawn of Christianity, have attached themselves to the pageant of faith." The First Edition Jury is now reading the advance sheets of novels to be published in April. You can start your first edition library with "Elmer Gantry" if we receive your enrollment before March 25th. We have contracted with the Publishers of this stirring novel for a limited quantity of books which will be held until March 25.

By joining the First Edition Society, Inc. (which you can do at present as a Preferred Member, without dues of any kind), you will be among the very first each month to read and discuss the outstanding novel which will be on everybody's tongue. The Novel chosen by the jury as the outstanding work of fiction each month, will be sent to you for 12 consecutive months. The bill at the Publisher's regular retail price plus a few cents postage will be enclosed. No book will be sent you that lists for more than $3.00.

A critical review of other exceptionally good books will be sent at the same time.

You will receive only first edition books just as soon as they are released by the publisher each month. This guarantees automatically prompt and immediate delivery! And First Edition Books increase in actual value. Any subscriber in good standing has the privilege of canceling his subscription at any time should the Jury's choice be unacceptable.

A Remarkable and Kindling Biography of George Cram Cook Written by His Wife

THE ROAD TO THE TEMPLE

By SUSAN GLASPELL

Author of "The Glory of the Conquered," etc.

"Susan Glaspell has composed probably her finest work in 'The Road to the Temple.' It is difficult to think of a personality more interesting in itself than that of the late George Cram Cook. He was a rich human being, a lover of pioneer America. and a lover of classic Greece. His biography, therefore, is the narrative of a long pilgrimage, a pilgrimage that started in a log cabin by the Mississippi, and ended on the slopes of the Greek hills. It is all beautifully told by Susan Glaspell."

BURST OF

Starring Dulcie Jayne

By VIRGINIA TRACY.

Cornella Marsh, employed in the scenario department of Hertzog's Perfection Motion Picture Studio at Fort Lee, N. J., learns with sorrow that Henry Horner, the head of the department, has been fired by Lyman Hertzog, son of the owner of the studio. Every one knows that Lyman is lealous of Henry because he is in love with Dulcie Jayne, the star of the studio, but Dulcie seems to prefer her director, Daniel L. Leland.

Mr. Hertzog suggests to Lyman that they feature Leland as an actor as well as a director, and this causes a quarrel between father and son. Old Mr. Hertzog suffers a stroke of apoplexy as a result and Lyman is left in charge of the studio. His first independent action is to discharge Leland, who takes his dismissal coolly and proceeds to finish a picture he's been working on. Lyman meets Dulcie on location and tries to force himself on her. Benny Rosencrans, Leland's camera man, comes to her assistance.

Cornella Marsh is detained at the studio by Lyman after the others have gone to write a criticism of a play he's interested in. She asks Lyman to let her off because she has an engagement to meet her mother downtown and take her to dinner and the theater as a birthday celebration. Lyman refuses. Cornella misses the last trolley, but Dulcie Jayne comes along in her car and offers her a lift to the ferry. Dulcie invites Cornella and her mother to dine with her. She tells Cornella that she is engaged to Henry Horner. She

DULCIE CONTINUES HER STORY.

As the play progressed Duicle chattered on to Cornella and her mother. "And, of course, a husband that treats you simply rotten, so while people are looking at the screen they can imagine themselves healing up your broken neart-why, I should say a marriage that was so terribly unhappy everybody knew it to be absolutely fierce was a regular asset. But papa's always had foam form on his lips at my marrying at all. And now he's got Lyman like he foam form on his lips at my harrying at all might have got salvation.

"It's because he's so scared of my pictures making a flop, and to marry Lyman'd be like marrying the firm. His letters keep saying one picture after another's a failure and the only way to secure my future is to marry Lyman. Mrs. and Miss Marsh, I've made two hundred and eighty thousand dollars so far this year. Wouldn't you think that'd secure a girl a better future than any Lyman Hertzog could give her?

"Maybe I ought to pretend to swallow Lyman till the time came to get rid of him. But, aside from me not being that kind of a girl, Lyman does make me so sick the very insides of my bones go soft! He——"A startling change suddenly appeared in her frail and ferocious little face. The color heightened alarmingly while the skin seemed to stiffen and swell, as if through all its minutest muscles her body were about to scream. "He hit Henry!" she said. "He hit Henry to humiliate him. When he'd discharged Henry and he thought Henry couldn't get me. He never imagined how Henry was just going to hold him up in the air like a guinea pig. Horrible pudgy little low squirming thing! And then he thinks I could ever look at him pudgy little low squirming thing! And then he thinks I could ever look at him again, and at his nasty hand! And not get sick at being in the same room with it—his hand, I mean. And at myself, too, for not being able to do a thing about it. Seems so queer I can't kill him! I can't even act impolite about it to him—Henry wouldn't like it at all. I suppose you see I can't help mentioning Henry once in a while, Miss Marsh?"

"Dear child," Cornelia found herself saying, "you never could talk about him enough for me. The one thing I ever had against you was that I thought you didn't appreciate him."

Then, "I am common, some ways," pondered Dulcie Jayne, in her hoarse ice. "But that way I'm not common. There must be something really fined all through me the way I do appreciate Henry. I love you for hating for fear I didn't, dear Miss Cornelia—you don't mind my calling you that? And for realizing, the way I can see you do, how he is my strength. I've got temper, Miss Cornelia, without Henry, but strength is different—you need sense for it. Henry is very wise. And I don't think I am wise. But when I this country, but has no professional garding exchange of prisoners, has sequalited me quite a little with the works of the famous poet, Robert Browning. And he's written a piece—Robert Browning has, I mean—with a line in it sounds as if he had written it about Henry.

only recently from Russia, where she it is in the possession of W. H. Tishin it sounds as if he had written it about Henry.

'Lived in his mild and magnificent eye.' "Henry has a mild and magnificent eye, Miss Cornelia. A kind of a calmeye. See now, when I think of it, I can get back to telling you how we hold of 'Heart of Fire.'"

The telling dealt with two well justified terrors—that Mrs. Rignold would her novel to some other company and that the Hertzogs would persist

"Of course, Henry refused it. And Dan refused it. And I refused it. But they could have bought it, anyhow, and put somebody else out in it. Only Julia Rignold couldn't be satisfied with anybody except me, because the le was she wrote it for me. Yes, after she'd seen me in one of Dan's old pictures her story came to her about me, and she wrote it, thinking when it was a picture I would play it. We got after her and made her go see what my Hertzog pictures were like and held out hopes of my getting loose—if we could've given her the least prospect of any definite date she'd have waited like a shot. But her agent, Ellerick, was sending it everywhere and offers of whole fortunes from other companies were falling round her like a blizzard and her husband thought, of course, she was crazy not to take them. And while we were pretty near crazy ourselves, we found out my mail was being monkey'd with—Lyman, of course! Trying to see was I having other offers, and what was I up to, anyhow. Well, we didn't know what might leak out, because Jufia Rignold is certainly an excited and indiscreet writer! When she get to New York, into the middle of all the fuss about her book that she set to New York, into the middle of all the fuss about her book that she hadn't quite felt the shock of in Peoria, she got keener than ever, of course, for the picture and the money, and the more afraid of advantages being taken of her. Just as I was getting more and more to feel that all the rest of my life, and Henry's, too, that was being taken away from me, depended on my bursting right out in 'Heart of Fire.' And we both went so out of our heads that Dan even thought one while we'd just make a bolt of the run away to that Dan even thought, one while, we'd just make a bolt of it—run away to Germany, where the law couldn't get me, and do our picture there. Either go without the American rights, that'd be worth five times all the rest of the Germany, where the law couldn't get me, and do our picture there. Either go without the American rights, that'd be worth five times all the rest of the world put together, of course, or else trust to the picture making such a hit abroad it'd force Herizogs to make terms. But then our lawyers convinced him not to. And whatever we would have done I don't know, if we hadn't been able to get Mrs. Rignold stuck on Dan. That and her being so awfully moral.

"You know what I mean by moral? Wants to join causes and support iteals and make the world better and happier for her having lived in it." I shall pass this way but once and all, only real modern—women's clubs and keeping their identities separate and birth control and everything. They're like that now, when they're moral, Henry says. So, it being her book that started it, she was all ready for our ideal, Independence Pictures, smaller and better, doing things right—she called it self-expression; the only true form of art, she said it was. Then, you see, as an authoress, she'd gone soft on her sympathetic heavy. 'Heart of Fire' is a girl's story, but once the man gets into it he certainly does eat it up. While Mrs. Rignold was writing him he came to mean all kinds of self-expression to her, till she had got him fixed up sacred as a holy statue in a little shrine her temperament had made for him, so she couldn't speak of him, hardly, without her voice changing. And who was to do him? I might have been wiped out, maybe, by some other blonde with a five figure check, but she looked at what they showed her for him and she felt all was vain. Then she came east and saw Dan.

"He was It.

"Well, mercy, Miss Cornelia, I thought if she feels this way about him in the daylight, so to speak, how'll she feel if ever she sees that profile of his on the screen and that sad smile? If ever she sees him—ACT! And, even at Hertzog's, now and then a flash of acting will leak through. So I thought once I could get him on for the part in 'Passion's Pride' we had her chained up for life. So long as we had Dan, Henry, and me, we had her, and so long as we had her to start out with Independence Pictures were safe, once we could get to making them. So long as we had Dan nothing mattered—and then Dan—All the same, after Lyman had once got excited about 'Heart of Pire,' and papa would have been on here and accepted it for me, and Ellerick All the same, after Lyman had once got excited about 'Heart of Fire,' and papa would have been on here and accepted it for me, and Ellerick and her husband were just breathing fire down her back for her to sell it to him, it was what he did to Dan lost Lyman his last chance. He engaged Wynn Perceval to do all my heavies. Wynn Perceval in 'Heart of Fire'! Her stomach turned on her and she sold us her book for ten thousand dollars. Ten, when she could have got maybe a hundred from Lyman. Ten thousand and a percenteral

"It was the very afternoon before my night work on 'Light of Dawn' Dan got her to de it. He was so scared that if she refused it'd kill my work that night he wouldn't even let me know he had an appointment with her. We were banking on 'Light of Dawn,' because we meant to steal one perfect film before any cutting, but what Dan and Miss Goldman decided on got let film before any cutting, but what Dan and Miss Goldman decided on got let film before any cutting, but what film to a picked crowd of the industry's loose on it; we meant to show that film to a picked crowd of the industry's influential men in a projection room in New York, so that they could see whether or not we'd really failen off in our work, Dan and me, and we did it. Dan did it."

The spring concert by the music de-partment of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at Orchestra hall last night in an all-American program The spring concert by the music department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at Orchestra hall last night in an all-American program brought the acquaintance of the Chicago Woman's Symphony orchestra, directed by Elens Moneak, a massed women's chorus, and Sophie Brandt'as soloist. Of the orchestra, probably more will be heard later, and chiefly because of Miss Moneak. At present it numbers about thirty-five, under pretty good control, with a fairly good tone. Miss Moneak is not only a good leader but a forceful personality with ideas.

	breath, as the program notes de scribed it, there might have been an addition that it consisted in large part of gobs of gloom and was really a musical picture of the Russian revolution. Its revolutionary spirit does not go into its manner of writing, which, together with plenty of other music, is greatly dependent upon Tschalkowsky. It is melodramatic, woeful, noisy, and its most lively mood comes in the last movement. This consists of the French revolutionary tunes, "La Carmagnole" and "Ca Ira," both with a Russian accent, contrasted and blended with "Dies Irae." Altogether it is an interesting piece of evidence, in an idlom a long ways from up to date. Mme. Onegin, who has more good looks and more fine voice than should be expected in any one artist, sang Andromache's Lament from Bruch's "Odysseus," and later a group of two songs by Schubert and two by Brahms. Here is one of the most beautiful voices on the stage today, and with such power one wonders why she found it necessary to press it into occasional sharpness.	"Spiritual inertia" was declared to be a prevailing failing by Dr. Frank E. Wilson of Eau Claire, Wis., who closed yesterday the week's series of Lenten services at the Garrick theater under Episcopal auspices. Beginning Monday Coadjutor Bishop Ivins of Milwaukee will speak daily for five days. "The people afflicted with inertia," said Dr. Wilson, "become mere spectators of the divine drama. There are those also who seek to compliment Christ and allow nice words to be a substitute for service. They are like those who sang hosannahs on Palm Sunday and were ready for crucifixion by Good Friday. "Of the two classes who stay out of the church some feel themselves unworthy, not good enough. Others are satisfied with their condition and think themselves too good for the church. Both are wrong. The church is not made up of perfect people, but of those who are seeking to become better by the aid of the church."	lege, is held to be the science of efficient living; "the study of the controllable environment and its adaptations for the improvement of the individual, and hence of the race, through increased efficiency, mental and physical." There will be a special course on various types of bables, such as "the well baby," "the sick baby," "the haif well child," and "the nervous child." Another group of married students will meet daily to discuss the family pocketbook, "and the concrete methods of handling the family income." OCEAN STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS. Arrived. At. From. This week's mild days have had a devastating effect on many of our city dwellers, especially those who had decided to so a journeying during March and April and to keep their country house closed until mid-May. Several chatclaines have fled from town distractions to oversee new decorations and garden plans at their rural menages, and are bewailing the fact that they can't just stay on out there to get a head start on the season.

Itake Forest's gay and fashionable little summer community will be happy to learn that they are to see more of the "Monnie" Wallers this year than they did last—only on most formal occasions is this popular young couple referred to as the James B. Wallers—for they plan to occupy their wallers—for they plan to occupy their farm, out west of the village on the read to Libertyville, from June to October, instead of spending just their week-ends, there as they did last year. Mrs. Waller is on her way home from Pinehurst, and after making a brief visit in New York will arrive in Chicago on Wednesday next. She is a delightful addition to the young married set here, and has made a real niche for herself since coming to Chi-cago in 1925 as the bride of one of our sought after young bachelors.

I hear that the "Dick" Cranes had st thrilling and not too comfortable trip from New York to the south. Their yacht ran into severe storms; hest was ill, and the crew deserted the ship half way down, making it necessary to find a whole new set of men to take them on their way. The treubled waters seem to be a thing of the past, however, and the little band of wanderers is enjoying life in the

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

I had been offered the position of superintendent of schools in a neighboring county and was on the interurban enroute to the county seat to talk the matter over with the school board, anxious, of course, to make the best impression I could.

The car was crowded, and standing nearby I recognized the president of the board, also going to the meeting.

One of the girl's meanest traits was answering in monosyllables and frequently in grunts when she was addressed at home. And she was as affable as any one could be when spoken to away from the home circle, the aunt related.

Such a photograph is hardly to be listed among the pretty girl pictures, now, is it? I wonder if there are many girls with two codes of manners—one for home and one for company.

nearby I recognized the president of the board, also going to the meeting. A little uneasy as to what to talk about, I directed his attention to a ridiculously made-up woman several seats away.

"Did you ever see such a sight?" I asked.

"Yes," he replied, "that's my sister."

In a mad effort to redeem myself, I stammered, "But she is really handsome compared with others. Look at that painted woman in lavender half-way down the aisle!"

A half angry, half amused expression came over his face as he slowly replied, "That's my wife." J. E. G.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Ti cought two codes of manners—one for home and one for company.

It ought not to be more difficult to be courteous and well mannered in the bosom of one's family than in the midst of strangers. If any one is entitled to consideration, certainly the family ought to come first, for when friends are needed, the kind of friends that will stick by you no matter what arises, you find them there at the hearthside and very little channe, indeed, there is of finding the same loyalty anywhere else. If one had two codes of manners that they had to adapt somehow, to home and company ought to be shown the cruder side, the family spared it. For if there is one way to test the real worth of a girl (or a boy, for that matter) it is in her and his

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If Tennyson had been poet laureate of styles he would never have said, "And the black bat night hath flown." For it never does fly. No matter what the season or the time of day, we never give up black. Somehow, this night shade is always smart—perhaps because it is so practical and becoming to so many.

Moreover, it proves a raging favorbecoming to so many.

Moreover, it proves a raging favorite in all compose creations. The latest instance of this theme is the display in several collections of dressy coats in kasha and satin, black with white trimmings of self-material, fur, or crèpe de chine. Black also registers in the realm of the smart tailleur worn with white crèpe blouses and occasionally in the more mannish types with white waistcoats.

As for afternoon frocks, black scores strongly, but is usually set off with touches of white. One individual trectment of this idea is set forth in the model we show today. Black crèpe fashions the frock, and white crèpe de chine is used for the pipings for neck chine is used for the pipings for neck and sleeves and for the short cape in the back.

This reappearance of the cape back is but one of many interesting revivals now enlivening the theater of fashion. The normal of slightly raised waist line is another. Note how in this model the clever inset of diamond shaped pieces lifts the waist line in front. This is then offset by the line at the hip, which descends slightly and brings to the front all the full seems. When She's at Home An older woman in describing a niece was the finest job I ever had. It was even better than working as a printer's devil."

Mr. Veeck for a long time has been convinced that folk take their baseball seriously. But yesterday afternoon, while he was making his encouraging forecast about the National league race, the mail brought a document that removed all doubt.

Several days ago the press carried a story out of Cincinnati that the Cubs were considering a trade of Hartnett, the Cub catcher, for Bubbles Hargrave, the Cincinnati backstop. In his denial Mr. Veeck attempted to be humorous. He announced that the Cubs wouldn't think of trading Hartnett for Hargrave unless the Reds three in five of their best players and a large amount of cash.

The serious minded fan wrote:

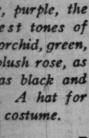

"You're probably the dumbest ball club president in the world. Hartnett isn't worth five ball players from any major league club, and the fact that you don't know it only demonstrates your ignorance. I'm sorry, but I den't see any help for you."

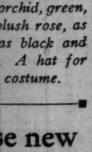

If you care to apply for Mr. Veeck's job, William Wrigley may be written at Carthy to become a bit elasted over Earl Webb, the young man who is a candidate for left field. Webb started off by fanning, and in his second at tempt grounded out, whereupon some gentleman cast a remark about a train pulling out for Louisville. Just to show that he had no interest in the sixth, and time field bleachers in the sixth, and content field bleachers in the sixth, and to coney turned up with a sore arm, so at the last moment it was necessary to stick Beek in the shortstop job. "The ideal set-up for truck operators of Chicago" says Curtiss Candy Company

You look for the "ideal set-up" in everything you buy; and it's doubly important in motor trucks. It means good trucks, a substantial concern back of them, and prompt, effective service.

Curtiss and many other leading Chicago concerns, whose trucks MUST be operated at minimum cost, definitely prefer Chicago Trucks. Their own experience with them has shown that Chicago Trucks give efficient, trouble-free service, at remarkably low cost; exactly the kind of service you want of your trucks.

ROBERT M. CUTTING COMPANY, Chicago, Illinois.

My Dear Mr. Cutting:

Our experience with the Chicago Trucks which we operate to transport Curtiss Candies convinces me that you offer the ideal set-up for truck operators in Chicago.

On checking over the month of December I find that 80 per cent of our total output was handled from our three plants by Chicago Truck equipment. This tonnage, added to the raw materials which these same trucks move into our plants, amounts to many millions of pounds monthly.

His first two songs, "Two Grenadiers" and "Song of the Flea," were distinctly Challapin—no other voice possibly like it—with his characteristic broad tone. Those two numbers were most enjoyed by my American ears. His singing of the "Song of the Volga Boatman" and "Down the Petersky" [Moscow street song) was Petorsky" [Moscow street song] was strongly Russian, with Russian gutteral words and tones, and also illustrating that with Challapin one never what changes he is going to make in the score or what voice color scheme he is going to insert into it.

On this stellar program also was Mme. Dusolina Giannini, a soprano, who was admirable in simple songs and glorious with her large, rich toned, emotional voice in dramatic operatic selections. PLAN AND AGREEMENT

For exchange of securities of THE COMMONWEALTH LIGHT & POWER COMPANY and INTERSTATE ELECTRIC CORPORATION for Securities of INLAND POWER & LIGHT CORPORATION dated April 1, 1926.

Notice is hereby given that the Plan above mentioned has been declared operative as to all the classes of securities deposited thereunder. This action has been made possible by the Agreement of Mr. A. E. Fitkin that, upon the consummation of the Plan and the acquisition of an important electric property now under contract, he will personally invest $1,500,000 in stock to be issued by The Commonwealth Light & Power Company and thus improve the position of all securities to be issued under or in connection with the Plan.

Deposits of securities under the Plan and Agreement will continue to be received up to but not after March 19, 1927.

Owing to the fact that authority from state public utilities commissions is required in respect of certain financing of operating companies, it is impossible at this time to state when the Plan will be consummated or the new securities ready for delivery.

of $11.27@11.35 averaged from 264 lin to 295 lbs.

Cattle buyers searched the Yards for destrable weighty beeves, offering the recent full advance for well finished stock. Absence of prime heavy held the peak price down to $12.70, paid for good 1,672 lb averages, with $12.00 the next highest of the day. Few passed $11.50, which was paid for 1,172 lb. steers. Butcher stock moved comparatively slowly at little price changes. Calves were slow at the recent decline. Stockers and feeders sold steady.

NEW TORK March 11.—(P)—Bovival of bullish enthusians in a celected list of public utility shares was one of the distinguishing characteristics of today's firregular curb market. Braditism Traction and Power imaged 17 points to a new high at 130 and Nackstone Valley Gas and Electric climbed market by points to a new high at 130 and then lost part of its gain. New peak grices also were recorded by Engine Power, Cursulfated Gas of Baltimora, International Utilities A, and New Engiand Telephone.

Renewed talk of thesizer and motion picture mergers probably accounted for the frame of 8 points in Stanley company and the heavy accumulation of Universal Picture, which moved up nearly 3 points to a new top at 45%. Motors were quiet and steady, paying little attention to rumors of a price cutting war if the reported dashing of prices by Henry Ford to carried into offect.
